

BUCKS in ACTION

On October 5, Mrs. Luke's 7th graders were able to step back into time with artifacts from Fort St. Joseph (Niles). Erika Hartley, who serves as the Western Michigan University Field Director and Curatorial Fellow for the Fort St. Joseph Archaeological Project, and Molly Watson, the Assistant Director for the Niles History Center, spent their day at BMS. Mrs. Hartley and Ms. Watson brought authentic artifacts from the Fort, and reproductions of the furs and goods traded by citizens of the era. Students were able to ask lots of questions about what it takes to be an archaeologist and the most memorable finds at the Fort. If your student is interested in history or archaeology, you might be interested in one of the Fort's Summer Camps! You can learn more about Fort St. Joseph by visiting <https://wmich.edu/fortstjoseph>, or by stopping by the Niles History Center.
